When the OEM was looking to replace the swing motion control pedals on large open-cut mining draglines, they required an innovative solution that not only provided a more ergonomic product than the original designs, but also one that could be adapted to suit the electrical control system utilised on each particular machine.

Owen Custom Products has provided a quality product that has been installed on numerous draglines of various models with extremely high levels of availability, low maintenance requirements, quality after sales service and most importantly, tremendous operator acceptance.

Owen Custom Products swing pedals have become the standard for not only existing machines but also all new draglines erected in Australia.
